

The Daily Gazetteer.

NUMB. 3251

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1744.

On Tuesday in the Afternoon arriv'd Three Mails from Flanders.

Warsaw, September 19.

THE Troops that are marching out of this Kingdom into Saxony, are to pass thro' Silesia upon the same Terms, and with the same Freedom, that the Prussian Forces march'd thro' Saxony. The Readiness with which his Prussian Majesty granted his License for that Passage, not only surpriz'd the People, but the Court itself, who expected to have met with some Difficulties on that Occasion. Yesterday the Baron de Walkenrodt, his Prussian Majesty's Minister here, receiv'd a Courier, with the important News of the Surrender of Prague; which was no sooner notified to the Senators and Ministers of the Crown, than a great Number of them sent their Gentlemen with their Congratulations of Congratulation to that Minister; which shews, that his Prussian Majesty has many more Creatures here than we could ever have imagin'd. It is, notwithstanding, certain, that his Majesty not only persists in his Resolution of granting a Body of his Saxon Troops, as Auxiliaries to the Queen of Hungary; but will also, to the utmost, the Scheme of forming an Army of Observation on the Frontiers of the Republick towards Silesia; having had the strongest Assurances from her Imperial Majesty of Russia, of an immediate and effectual Succour, in case either the Dominions of the Republick, or his own, should be attack'd, in Consequence of his Supporting the Common Cause.

Lisbon, September 8. On Wednesday last one of our Men of War return'd into Port, from a Cruise against the Salis Rovers; and the Captain reports, that in the Height of Cape St. Vincent he met with ten French Men of War, who had with them an English Prize. By a Ship arriv'd from Macao, we have receiv'd a Confirmation of a great Fire's happening at Canton, by which the Magazines of the English, Dutch, and Portuguese, were consumed, and only the French escaped; which was owing to their having embark'd most of their Effects on board their Homeward-bound Fleet. We have, by the same Channel, an Account, that two English Men of War attack'd, and after an Engagement which lasted six Hours, had made themselves Masters of a Spanish Gallion, the Cargo of which was esteem'd worth two Millions. His Majesty's Health continues to be very indifferent.

Naples, September 22. Orders are given for putting to Readiness, with the utmost Expedition, her Majesty's Apartments; and she is very soon expected here from Palermo. We are absolutely recovered from the Apprehensions we were under, of an English Squadron's coming hither; having certain Intelligence, that there are no Ships of that Nation in our Seas. On Sunday last three Persons of Distinction were conducted to the Castello del Ovo, being charged with treasonable Practices. The same Day arriv'd an Officer from the Camp at Veletri, with Dispatches of very great Importance; upon which, Council was held, that lasted till it was late; but we were not able to learn, at least with any degree of Certainty, what Resolutions were taken therein; or indeed what the Subject was of their Debates. This Morning, however, another large Sum of Money was borrowed from our Banks, for his Majesty's Service; and a new Troop of 200 Waggon, and as many Mules, laden with all sorts of Provisions, will set out in a few Day for the Camp.

Rome, September 26. The two Armies in our Neighbourhood remain still in the same Situation, without attempting any Thing considerable. That of Naples, however, continues to receive frequent Reinforcements, which amount already to upwards of 3000 Men. The Austrian Army has not hitherto taken any Step that can be said to indicate a Retreat immediately, but abundance, that it will not be long before they quit our Neighbourhood. About 1500 Sick and Wounded have been transported into Tuscany, and more in the like Condition, are to take the same Route this Day. The necessary Precautions have been likewise taken, for supplying the Army with Provisions in their March. On Monday last a Council was held at the Cardinal Secretaries, on the Arrival of the Marquis de Colleredo, the Apostolic Commissary in the Austrian Camp; which is supposed to turn on the same Subject, and on the Means of preventing the Countries suffering by their Retreat. Some Days ago the Austrian Hussars surpriz'd a Stranger, who was carrying Letters to the Spanish Camp, and carried him Prisoner to their Head Quarters. We are informed, that a strong French Squadron is arrived in the Mediterranean; so that we expect, suddenly, the News of an Engagement.

Saluzzo, Sept. 25. The Siege of Coni is carried on as vigorously as the Season will permit; and, on the other Hand, there never was a Garison that made a more obstinate, or a better conducted Defence; and as it is exceedingly well provided in every Respect, we are of Opinion that it will yet hold out a Month. The Commandant, whom his Majesty made Choice of expressly for this Purpose, and from a high Opinion of his Merit, has justified, in every Respect, the Sentiments the King entertained of him; and has done all that could be required, or expected, from a Man in his Post; and as he has under him four Colonels, who are all brisk, active Officers, and of unquestion'd Capacity, we are thoroughly satisfied that nothing will be omitted that may contribute to make the Enemy lose Men, and Time, before the Place; which is, to us, without doubt, a Matter of the last Importance. Our Army, in the mean time, lies at its Ease, receiving daily Recruits and Refreshments; their's, on the other Hand, surrounded by our light arm'd Troops, are continually barras'd, and are every Day sustaining fresh Losses. It is look'd upon as a Thing certain here, that by the 28th we shall be in a Condition to march, in order to attack the Enemy, and to relieve Coni. We are certainly superior to them in Foot; and if they are superior to us in Horse, we have the Satisfaction of knowing that their Horses are, and have been, for a long time, excessively distressed for want of Forage.

Vienna, October 3. Things seems to be coming to Extremities between our Court, and that of Prussia. Mr. Weingarten, Secretary of our Embassy to this Court, is recalled, and has Orders to repair immediately to Warsaw. What seems to speak this still more plainly, is a Proclamation issued by the Queen, for recalling all her Subjects that are in the Prussian Service. The Proclamation is dated Sept. 14, and contains, amongst others, this extraordinary Clause. 'It being known to every body, in what Manner his Prussian Majesty, notwithstanding the Treaty of Peace concluded at Breslau, has invaded the Kingdom of Bohemia, at the very Time when the Austrian Army was making the utmost Progress in Alsace; and as this Step cannot but be regarded as a direct and formal Infraction of that Treaty, the Queen recalls all her Subjects of Hungary, who are, at present, in the Service of the King of Prussia, whether they possess Civil or Military Employments, or are Subaltern Officers, or even private Soldiers. Her Majesty farther promises, and declares, that such as in Obedience to this Summons, return within the Space of two Months into their native Kingdom of Hungary, have nothing to apprehend from what is past; but, on the contrary, such as shall not obey this Summons, and the supreme and perempory Orders of the Queen, their Sovereign, shall be declared infamous; and in case they are Noble, shall be degraded, and all their Lands and Estates confiscated.' Baron Hagen arriv'd lately from the Camp of Count Bathiani, in Bohemia; but hitherto we have no Account of his Dispatches; all that we know is, that that General is encamped near Piseck, with his Army; and that he very soon expects to join the Troops of Prince Charles of Lorraine, and the Saxon Auxiliaries. Count Ogilvie, the late Governor of Prague, is arriv'd at an Estate he has, a small Distance from this City. His Co-adjutor, M. de Harsch, is arriv'd, notwithstanding his making himself Prisoner of War; and will be called to a very severe Account for surrendering the Capital of Bohemia in less than a Week's open Trenches, when a Part of his Garison offer'd to defend it to the last Extremity; a fine Train of Artillery arriv'd a few Days ago from Buda, together with a vast Convoy of Ammunition, which have been all laid up in our Arsenals.

Frankfort, Oct. 11. His Imperial Majesty's Journey is again deferred; and it is now impossible to say when it will take Place. We have received a Confirmation of the taking Donawert by the Imperial Army. Amongst other Particulars of that Action, they give us these; The Counts de Piosasque and Preysing were detached to execute this important Enterprize, with a Thousand Horse and Dragoons, and Two thousand Grenadiers, exclusive of the independent Company of G-schry. They attacked and carried the Pallisades in less than Half an Hour; upon which the Townsmen rose, and threw open one of the Gates; and the Austrian Garison seeing this, retired precipitately over the Danube. There were Abundance of them destroyed in their Retreat, and our Grenadiers pursued them for several Miles: Whereas, on our Side, we had but Twenty-six killed and wounded. This News has occasioned great Joy at Court, which has been mightily increased by some lucky Pieces of Intelligence that have since arriv'd; for Yesterday in the Evening the Marquis de Tavaners, a Major-General, and Aid de Camp to his Imperial Majesty, entered this City; preceded by Twelve Postillions, blowing their Horns, in order to bring the Emperor the first News of a signal Victory obtained in Piedmont, by the combined Armies of France and Spain, over the King of Sardidia, on the 2d of this Month. He was dispatched hither by the Marshal Coigny, who received the News directly from the Prince of Conti, by his Aid de Camp, who brought no more than these few Words, written with a Pencil, on a Card, You may give entire Credit to what the Baron relates, as to the Success of our Army. People, however, talk variously of this Affair: That there has been a Battle all agree; but every Body is not so well satisfied as the Court seems to be, as to the Victory obtained by the Princes. This Morning, at Ten o'Clock, arriv'd a Courier from Count Seckendorff, with this important News; That the Imperial Army had pass'd the Lech at Mörbringen, and were in full March for Munich. We take it for granted, that the Body of French Troops, under the Duke de Beaufours, and the Chevalier de Belleisle, have, by this time, reach'd Bavaria; where his Imperial Majesty will, in a few Days, have an Army of 40,000 Men; while that of the Queen of Hungary does not consist of full 15,000 regular Troops. Count Seckendorff writes Word, that he hoped the next Day to come up with General Berenclau, and, by forcing the Austrians to a Battle, to deliver the Electorate entirely.

Extract of a private Letter from the Camp of the Duke of Saxe Weissenfels at Placcen in Bohemia, Oct. 7. 1744.

'On Monday last our Army, consisting of 25,600 Men, assembled on the Frontiers of Bohemia, and began their March for this Place, being joined the same Day by 17,000 Austrians. We expect, in a few Days, another Corps of 18,000, when our Army will consist of 60,000 effective Men. On Sunday last the Duke conferred with Prince Charles of Lorraine, who is at the Head of his own Army, which consists of 40,000. The Duke will command the Army of the Allies in Chief, and will act in strict Conjunction with the Prince; in order to force the King of Prussia to come to a Battle immediately, or to abandon Bohemia directly.'
